Lead Your School Sean Cain

Best-selling author, national presenter and Texas educator, Sean Cain, makes complex education problems solvable and transforms education theory into systematic practice. In his Lead Your School workshop, the audience will participate in a three-part, power-packed day of learning:

1. The Exciting World of Instructional Infrastructure: Addresses the three foundation infrastructure components necessary to leverage teacher capacity and increase student achievement.
2. Cultivate to Great: Describes the process for creating an environment that encourages teacher growth and accelerates their skill acquisition.
3. Fundamental Change: Shares the lessons learned from observing great teachers and how the increased use of The Fundamental 5 has a powerful and positive impact on instructional rigor and the overall classroom dynamic.

Book and extensive handouts will be provided.

Building Relationships: With Child, With Families, With Community Cynthia Garrison

When we talk about student success, we usually think of test scores. Student success goes beyond the classroom and involves the families and community. Schools must ensure the relationships with each involved; the child, the families and the community, and grow and maintain these positive relationships. Cynthia Garrison will address the barriers which prevent parent and family engagement, strategies to overcome those barriers, encourage healthy communication among family, child and school and share ideas on ways to change the way we think about parent and family engagement to safeguard the end goal, Building Relationships.

Afternoon Sessions - 12:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

- Cynthia Garrison - How Do We Include Other Cultures?
- Terri Stafford - ESSA Updates
- Skip Forsyth - Parent & Family Handbook and Program Reminders
